Assignment #4 : Using APIs to access a Firestore Collection

Homework screenshot #1:

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Platform Firestore interface. The left sidebar has sections for Database (Data, Indexes, Import/Export, Security Rules), Insights (Usage), and IAM & Admin. The main area shows a collection named "DanddankNetflixshows" with a single document named "JxWSRPVdFDGJ2hdESnF7". The document details pane indicates "Cloud Firestore in Native mode" and "Database location: nam5 (us-central)". The document itself is empty, with the message "This document has no fields".

Homework screenshot #2:

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Platform IAM & Admin interface. The left sidebar includes sections for IAM, Identity & Organization, Policy Troubleshooter, Policy Analyzer, Organization Policies, Service Accounts (which is selected), Workload Identity Federation, Labels, Tags, Settings, Privacy & Security, Identity-Aware Proxy, Roles, Audit Logs, Asset Inventory (NEW), Essential Contacts, and Groups. The main area is titled "danddankhomework4serviceaccount" and shows the "KEYS" tab. It displays a single key entry: Type: Active, Status: Active, Key: dc4235f0a9357fa21fbe248f5d64ef5eaa2d3db, Key creation date: Nov 20, 2021, Key expiration date: Dec 31, 9999.

Homework screenshot #3:

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Shell Editor interface. The top bar shows "console.cloud.google.com iam-admin/serviceaccounts/details/106096234121922147258;edit=true?keys?project=danddank-homework4&cloudshell=true". The editor window contains Python code in an "uploaddata.py" file:

#!/usr/bin/python3
This script will upload data to the Firestore database.
Your current project must have the correct credentials set to danddank-homework4.
Use `gcloud config set project PROJECT_ID` to change to a different project.
pink58972@googlecloudshell:~ [danddank-homework4]$

The code is as follows:

from google.cloud import firestore
import csv

Initialize Firestore client
db = firestore.Client()

Read CSV file
with open('netflix_titles.csv', 'r') as f:
    reader = csv.reader(f)
    next(reader) # skip header
    for row in reader:
        # Create a new document reference
        doc_ref = db.collection("DanddankNetflixshows").document(row[0])
        # Set the document's data
        doc_ref.set({
            "title": row[1],
            "type": row[2],
            "release_year": int(row[3]),
            "rating": row[4],
            "duration": row[5],
            "genre": row[6],
            "original_language": row[7],
            "imdb_score": float(row[8]),
            "popularity": float(row[9]),
            "adult": bool(row[10])
        })

Homework screenshot #4:

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Platform Cloud Shell interface. The left sidebar displays a file tree for a project named 'danddank-homework4'. The main area shows the content of the 'uploaddata.py' script. The script reads a CSV file ('netflix_titles.csv') and prints each row to the terminal.

uploaddata.py
1 import os
2 import sys
3 import csv
4 file_name = "netflix_titles.csv"
5 count = 0
6 with open(file_name, "r", encoding='latin-1') as csv_file:
7     csv_reader = csv.reader(csv_file, delimiter=',')
8     count = 0
9     for row in csv_reader:
10         print(count)
11         count += 1
12         print(row[0] + "\t" + row[1])

Homework screenshot #5:

uploaddata.py
1 import os
2 import sys
3 import csv
4 file_name = "netflix_titles.csv"
5 count = 0
6 with open(file_name, "r", encoding='latin-1') as csv_file:
7     csv_reader = csv.reader(csv_file, delimiter=',')
8     count = 0
9     for row in csv_reader:
10         print(count)
11         count += 1

Homework screenshot #6:

firestoreaccess.py
12 doc_ref = store.collection('BandanNetflixshows')
13
14 file_name = "netflix_titles.csv"
15
16 with open(file_name, "r", encoding='latin-1') as csv_file:
17     csv_reader = csv.reader(csv_file, delimiter=',')
18     data = {}
19     for row in csv_reader:
20         data = {
21             "show_id":row[0], "type":row[1], "title":row[2], "director":row[3], "cast":row[4], "country":row[5], "date_added":row[6],
22             "release_year":row[7], "rating":row[8], "duration":row[9], "listed_in":row[10], "description":row[11]
23         }
24         doc_ref.add(data)
25     print("success!")
```

At the bottom, the terminal shows the command being run and its successful execution.

pink58972@cloudshell:~/DanddankHomework4 (danddank-homework4)$ python3 uploaddata.py success!

Homework screenshot #7:

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Platform Firestore interface. The left sidebar has sections for Database (Data, Indexes, Import/Export, Security Rules), Insights (Usage), and Release Notes. The main area shows a hierarchical view of collections: Root > DandankNetflixshows > 003VpXorPBZlOPs63j4i. The right pane displays the document details for the item with ID 003VpXorPBZlOPs63j4i in Native mode. The document contains fields such as cast, country, date_added, description, director, duration, listed_in, rating, release_year, show_id, title, and type. The value for show_id is highlighted in yellow.

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Platform Firestore interface. On the left, the sidebar includes sections for Database (with Data, Indexes, Import/Export, and Security Rules), Insights (with Usage), and Release Notes. The main area displays the 'Data' view for the 'DanddankNetflixshows' collection. The collection has two documents: '003VpXorPBZlOp63j4i' and '008RF0o3LtcpuBpKgbfM'. The second document is selected and expanded, showing its internal structure with fields like cast, country, date_added, description, director, duration, listed_in, rating, release_year, show_id, title, and type. The document ID is also present as a field.

Homework screenshot #9:

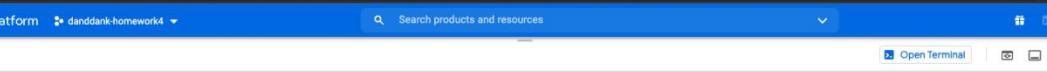

The screenshot shows the Google Cloud Platform Cloud Shell interface. The terminal window displays Python code for a Flask application named Dandankhomework4. The code defines a route '/type</type>' that queries a Firestore collection 'DandankNetflixFirestore' for documents where the 'type' field matches the query parameter. The results are returned as a list of movie documents.
